

ABOUT LINDA FAY

I live in Oklahoma City with my husband Paul and Boxer puppy, Sammie (pictured below). We have four sons, one daughter, and nine grandkids, who all live within fifty miles. For the past several years, I've worked as a career counselor in the city schools, a technology center, and, most recently, a community college. Officially, I'm retired, except for teaching part-time at the college. However, I seem to be as busy as ever.

My master's degree is in school counseling and psychometry, and I have national certifications as a counselor and as a vocational evaluation specialist.

My biggest training challenge so far has been Sammie. She takes us walking and has taken it upon herself to dig a swimming pool in the back yard. She goes ballistic when company comes wanting to jump on them and play. One of our grandkids has nicknamed her Dogzilla. In spite of it all, we love her. She's training us well.

Paul and I are members of Eagle Heights Church where we first came in contact with Nathan Smith, George Verwer's assistant from OM. The Lord put him in my path when I was searching for a Christian service opportunity. One thing we love about our church is that it takes the great commission seriously. We have launched several full-time missionaries as well as an annual missions conference, short-term trips, and local part-time projects.

I enjoy meeting people and being helpful, so make my day and contact me.
